Chris: Hey, look at my new D.S.L.R. Cool, isn't it?

Li: Wow, D.S.L.R. (Digital Single Lens Reflex) 那不是数码单反相机? I can see you're really investing in your photography course.

Chris: Yep. After six months of hard work I want to get a distinction for my final piece.

Li: A distinction 考试拿优, 这是你的目标。

Chris: Yes, there's a grand prize of £3,000! If I win, I'll be able to buy myself some brand new equipment. Get the picture?

Li: What picture?

Chris: Get the picture – it's another way of saying, do you understand? Do you get the message?

Li: Get the picture? 意思是你明白了吗? That's a good phrase. Here is how you use it:

Chris: No, we're going to take the train at 11.03, not 12.03. Get the picture?

Jennifer: Before I even finished what I was saying Kate got the picture straight away.

Li: But I still don't get the picture I'm afraid. What have I got to do with you winning the prize?

Chris: I need your help. I've got to take a series of pictures of someone in different locations. I have to take them all very quickly.

Li: But I'm not photogenic 我不上相。

Chris: Don't be modest. Come on, get your gear ready. We can go to the park.

In the park

- Chris: OK, let's start from the rose garden and move to the side of the lake. I'll take a variety of snaps. Say 'cheese'!
- Li: Snaps 抓拍。 Say 'cheese'!
- Chris: Portrait. 肖像。
Landscape. 风景。
Close up. 特写。 Looking sharp!
Candid – so informal. 偷拍。 Great!
OK, that's it. Thanks for your help.
- Li: Oh, I'm shattered.
- Chris: Well, if I win the prize, I'll buy you an ice-cream.
- Li: What?! Only an ice-cream?! 真是小财迷一个!
